

AFP, News Editor (Hong Kong)

Agence France-Presse (AFP), one of the world's leading news agencies, is looking for dynamic, experienced editors to join its English-language newsdesk at its Asian headquarters in Hong Kong.

The successful applicants will have a proven track record in journalism, with experience of handling and editing top global stories to real-time deadlines. Knowledge of French would be a major advantage.

We are looking for journalists with exemplary writing skills, excellent news judgement and the ability to work under pressure in a fast-paced, dynamic newsroom.

The roles are editing positions which can lead to reporting assignments and longer term correspondent postings.

A sound understanding of economics and strong multimedia skills are all essential. Knowledge of Asian affairs and foreign languages desirable.

To apply, send a CV and some writing samples to recruitment.hkg@afp.com
